

THE VINTAGES OF ROYAL TOKAJI

Royal Tokaji's Aszú wines are determined vintage by vintage. Since its establishment in 1989, Royal Tokaji has thus far produced Aszú wine in 17 of its 26-year history.

1990: Royal Tokaji's first vintage — a small, but classic vintage.

1991: Very good quality wines that are just beginning to open up

1992: Royal Tokaji produced wine only from its Betsek vineyard.

1993: Outstanding — one of the best years in memory. This first truly great vintage marked the renaissance of Tokaji wines.

1995: Very good quality wines, particularly single-vineyard wines

1996: A classic year with good quality wines

1999: Outstanding — rivaling the 1993 vintage. The extraordinary acidity levels guarantee wines with great longevity.

2000: Outstanding — great richness and balance. High sugar levels produced very accessible wines.

2003: Outstanding — combining the best of the 1999 and 2000 vintages. Quality rather than quantity defined this vintage.

2005: Very good quality wines

2006: Royal Tokaji made only 5-puttonyos wines.

2007: Great vintage; enough quality and quantity for single-vineyard wines

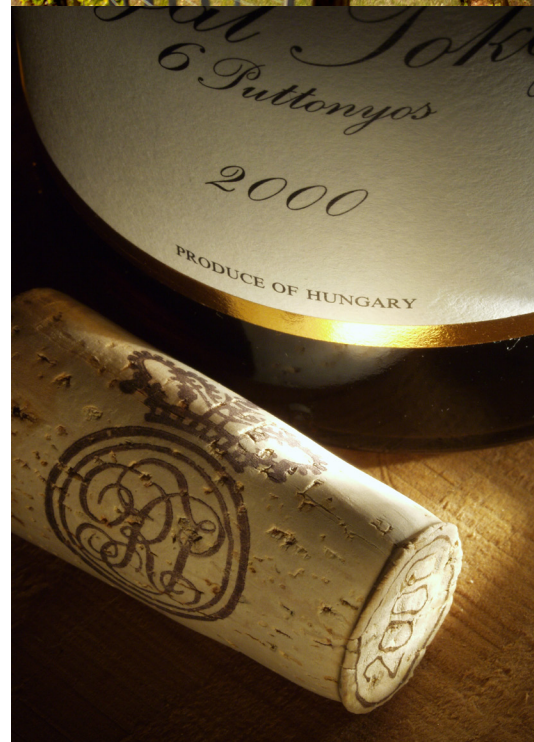

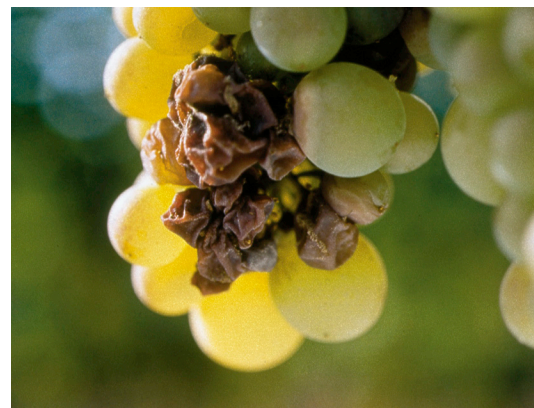

2008: Miraculous vintage. Royal Tokaji will most likely produce single-vineyard wines.

2009: Difficult vintage; fortunately, Royal Tokaji picked before the rains. Mézes Mály was the only single-vineyard wine produced.

2011: Again, a complicated vintage, however, Royal Tokaji produced a very small, but superb, 6-puttonyos blend.

2013: An outstanding, and long-awaited aszú harvest.

2015: Royal Tokaji made only 5-puttonyos wines.
